SONG CAME FROM THE CELL ABOVE

Young Girl Arrested for Furnishing Desperado Saws, Pleaded His Ear With Joyful Strains.

MINNIE BLACKBURN IN JAIL

Interesting Story of Human Interest
—How Itinerant Printer Had Prisoner Unbosom Himself.

There is a deal of human interest in the story of Ray Zearinger's attempted break for liberty which was frustrated Saturday when an itinerant printer released from jail returned and warned Sheriff King of the danger he was in and the desperate fellow's plans for escape.

Zearinger's confession and the subsequent arrest of Minnie Harmon Blackburn for complicity in the attempted escape, created a mild sensation. The girl was arrested by Sheriff King about six o'clock Saturday evening and placed in the women's department of the county jail. She did not show any outward sign of emotion when taken into custody and placed in jail. A glimpse into the girl's heart and her feeling in the matter was evidenced Sunday afternoon as she sang most of the afternoon. Once her voice was lifted high as if she was singing to the man below, she warbled the notes of "Love Me in That Good Old Fashioned Way."

It was the love for another woman that prompted Zearinger to make a confession Saturday and the shrewdness of Sheriff King played no small part in the affair. When the official went into the jail and found everything as John Campbell, the printer, had told him was true, he made Zearinger leave his cell while he made a thorough investigation of the premises. Zearinger saw it was all up with him and he entreated with the sheriff to heed him and he would tell all. Sheriff King wisely turned a deaf ear to the fellow saying he would hear nothing from him and he touched a tender spot in the criminal's heart when he declared he meant to have Edna Trainor, the sweetheart, who so persistently worked for Zearinger's release, lodged in jail within twenty-four hours. Zearinger pleaded with the sheriff not to cause her arrest swearing she was innocent of any wrongdoing. Sheriff King left the fellow sick at heart, disconsolate, alone in his cell. The officer came back again in half an hour and said that arrangements were being made to arrest Miss Trainor. The blow nearly staggered Zearinger. He protested that she had any hand or any knowledge of the affair and said if the sheriff would listen to him he would unbosom himself for he realized the prison doors were yawning for him. While he was in this humor Sheriff King summoned Deputy Prosecutor Newbold, after a hasty communication with Judge Sparks, and in the presence of the sheriff and prosecuting attorney, Zearinger made a sworn statement.

He said he gave Minnie Blackburn, who was coming to the jail to see George Wolf, one dollar with which to buy saws. She had been doing his washing and her presence about the jail never aroused any suspicion. For hours, day after day, she was wont to stand outside the jail and converse with Zearinger, even after Wolf was released. She brought the saws to him, he said, in some books which were wrapped in a newspaper. The package was given to Mrs. Lelia Coleman by Minnie Blackburn, who in turn gave it to Wolf, who was then in jail under a charge of burglary. Wolf took the saws from the books and gave them to Zearinger. This was on August 18. Wolf cannot be charged with any criminal connection, even if he did have a hand in the affair, as he was a prisoner at the time and could put up the defense that he was doing it to effect a means of escape himself. Since then he has been cleared of the charge against him.

When Leslie Bundrant, the negro murderer, was in jail, he made a crude saw of an old knife blade and with this had started to saw a bar in the rear of the cage. It was Bundrant's intention to get out into the corridor and attack Sheriff King with a large piece of iron when he came to serve their meals. But Bundrant made little headway in sawing the bar. However, he started a place which Zearinger afterwards finished. When he was not working on the bar he hung an old pair of trousers over it, as if he was drying them. The desperate fellow succeeded in sawing the bar at the top and broke it off at the bottom. When he tried to get out he found the hole was not large enough as his body stuck fast and he could not get his hips through the opening. In trying to squeeze through he sustained painful injuries about the body.

Failing in this he turned his attention to sawing a large bolt that held the lock in place and this he had sawed off ready for his escape Saturday evening when the sheriff came in with the evening meal. If he made a clean getaway, he meant to search the sheriff's residence for a revolver to fight to the death, if anyone attempted to stop him, once he was out and on the highway. A large piece of iron, which he had twisted off his bunk frame was found hidden in a mattress and this he intended using on the sheriff and his wife if they discovered him when escaping.

John Campbell, the printer, to whom Zearinger confided his plans of escape, deserves no end of credit for the part he played. During the several days he was in jail, he "warmed up" to Zearinger and invited his confidence. He told Zearinger that he only worked at the printer's trade for a "blind," and that his real vo-

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Saunders Settle Their Difficulties Because of Baby.

WAR CLOUDS HAVE VANISHED

After weeks of family quarreling, in which charges and counter charges were filed, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Saunders have kissed and made up all their difficulties. Mr. and Mrs. Saunders separated some time ago and during that time a baby was born. Saunders returned about two weeks ago to the home of his father-in-law where Mrs. Saunders was making her home to see his child. It was then that the first real trouble occurred between the two. Now the war clouds have vanished and Mr. Saunders has gone back to his wife and baby.

PRaises POWER OF NEWSPAPERS

Rev. R. W. Abberley Tells of Power of Press and Man With the Pen.

SCORES YELLOW JOURNALS

Says Press Can Have Great Influence
For Evil as Well as For Good.

Rev. R. W. Abberley preached last night at the Main Street Christian church before a large audience on "The Man With the Pen." After emphasizing the influence of our great literary men in making the ideals before the American people which are an important factor in our national life and institutions, paid a glowing tribute to the modern newspaper as a potent force in our civilization. The man with the pen wields a tremendous influence, said the speaker, through the newspaper in moulding public opinion and character.

"Where the preacher reaches an audience of hundreds the editor reaches thousands," continued the speaker. "The press has ever been a terror to tyrants, the scourge of the wicked and the friend of liberty and righteousness. In a country like Russia, where the government denies freedom of speech and every newspaper, book and magazine is censored by the officials, it is because they recognize the power of the press and are afraid of its influence on the public mind. In free America the best exponent of the popular will is the newspaper and we guard jealously the freedom of the press because in a democratic government 'Vox populi vox Dei,' the voice of the people is the voice of God. No one can estimate the power of a great metropolitan daily like those of Chicago and New York to work good or ill.

"The 'Yellow Journal,' with its startling headlines, its falsified news, and its immoral pictures is an abomination of desolation," said Rev. Abberley. "Editors and proprietors of newspapers should recognize that the great influence of the modern daily paper imposes on them tremendous moral responsibility. While in the average newspaper there is much to commend, there is much to condemn. The publication of details of prize fights, announcing of tips for gamblers on horse races, and advertising of that which is immoral, and the abnormal amount of space that is given to details of murders, assaults and the salacious testimony of divorce trials are undoubtedly injurious to public morals and ruinous to the youth of our land. More space should be given in our newspapers to the great moral and religious movements of the age."

Rev. Mr. Abberley commended in this regard the Rushville papers for their generous treatment of the churches in their news columns, thus showing their appreciation of the fact that the good people of this city are interested in the moral and spiritual affairs of the community in which we live.

MANY SHOOTERS WILL BE HERE

Gun Club Tournament to be Held Here Wednesday and Thursday
Attracting Wide Attention.

WILL ENTERTAIN VISITORS

Club Making Arrangements to Take Care of Spectators at Their Club Grounds.

The first annual tournament of the Rushville Gun club will begin at the club grounds northeast of this city next Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock and continue until Thursday evening. The affair promises to be even larger than its most sanguine promoters expected. Letters are being received daily from expert gunners, saying that they will be here. Crack marksmen will be here from all of the surrounding States, the club expecting to entertain at least sixty shooters during the two days.

The affair will be of interest not only to members of the club and other local gunners who will take part, but the public in general is manifesting an interest in the shoot. The club is making especial arrangements to entertain spectators, and especially ladies. No admission fee will be charged and everybody is more than welcome. The shooting begins at 9:30 o'clock on Wednesday and Thursday morning and will continue throughout the day. There will be a large lunch tent on the grounds and every effort made to make the two days pleasant for the visitors as well as the home people who attend.

The committee is especially well pleased over the replies that have been received from experts. A large number of them will be in the tournament and the spectators will have the opportunity of seeing some of the best shooting ever done in the State. A few of those who will be here are L. R. Barclay and J. B. Veitmeyer of Chicago; H. C. LeCompte of Nashville, Tenn.; L. H. Reed of Cincinnati; L. W. Cumberland, J. W. Barr of Cleveland; H. W. VanNest of South Bend; Rollo Heikes of Pearl Beach, Mich.; T. H. Parry, Earnest Tripp, Dr. Britton of Indianapolis; Mayor Ed. Voris of Crawfordsville.

BAD HORSE GOT THE HIGH SIGN

F. W. Lowe's Horse Caused Much Excitement in Main Street
Shortly After Noon.

NO SERIOUS DAMAGE DONE

An accident occurred just after noon today which might have resulted in something serious, had not several bystanders interfered. The horse belonging to F. W. Lowe was standing hitched to a large sign in front of Abercrombie's jewelry store. The shafts became entangled in the sign so that when the horse moved, the sign was thrown over on it. The animal became frightened, turned around and started up Main street, dragging the sign. The buggy struck a dray at the corner of Third and Main streets. The harness was broken and the horse had almost freed itself from the buggy. The outfit was not seriously damaged.

BIG RALLY AT CARTHAGE

Republicans are Expecting a Large Crowd Thursday.

Next Thursday will be the biggest day which Carthage has had for a long time. A big Republican rally is to be held there and a large crowd is expected from all over the county. The meeting will be held in Webb's grove east of town. Congressman E. D. Crumpacker is the principal speaker of the day. Thomas E. Davidson, a well known speaker of Greensburg, will speak in the evening. Several bands from surrounding towns have been secured and a good time is assured.

HAD MANY FRIENDS HERE

Prof. Cyrus W. Hodgkin of Earlham college, and one of the most prominent authorities on history in the United States, died Saturday at his home in Richmond, after suffering acutely for the past two years. Prof. Hodgkin was at one time superintendent of schools here and has a number of friends in this city.

Prof. Hodgkin's death resulted from a kidney disease with serious complications. Despite the fact that he had been confined to an invalid's chair at his home for the past two months and had been an extremely ill man, his death was unexpected, the attending physicians having informed the family that he might linger on for several months.

The funeral services will be held at Richmond tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock.

ZEARINGER GOES TO PRISON SOUTH

Jail Breaker and Burglar Draws
From One to Fourteen Years
Before Judge and Jury.

HIS AGE HAD WIDE INFLUENCE

Fears Came to the Eyes of Wayward
Youth as he Extended Shackled
Hands to the Jurors.

Ray Zearinger was tried today in the circuit court before Judge Sparks and the regular petit jury, on a charge of being implicated in the Frank Wilson clothing store robbery. It will be remembered that he escaped from the jail here several months ago and afterwards was apprehended in Muscatine, Iowa. He was discovered Saturday after he had made arrangements to again escape, having sawed the bolt of his cell door.

A number of witnesses testified at the trial, including chief of detectives from Terre Haute, who effected the capture of Zearinger, when he was disposing of the clothing in that city.

Zearinger told a story on the stand that was almost improbable and laced with inconsistencies. He claimed a third party interested him in coming here and carrying away the goods stolen from the Wilson store and that he did not know they were stolen.

The jury was out about one hour and returned a verdict of guilty of grand larceny as charged. Judge Sparks sentenced him to the Jeffersonville reformatory from one to fourteen years, fined him $300, and disallowed him for ten years. After receiving the sentence, tears came to Zearinger's eyes as he extended his shackled hands to the jurors, thanking them for the leniency shown him, and between sobs he declared that he meant to lead a better life after he was released from the reformatory.

Zearinger is but twenty-one years of age and his tender years had a wide influence upon the jury. Had they seen fit they could have returned a verdict finding the defendant guilty of burglary and the judge could have imposed a sentence of from ten to twenty years.

MR. SHERMAN IS IN INDIANA TODAY

Vice Presidential Nominee Touring
the Hoosier State.

STARTED IN AT EVANSVILLE

From the Southern Boundary of the State to the Northern Line, the Sherman Party Will Continue Its Progress Today, the Nominee Making Addresses in Seven Different Cities—Mr. Sherman's Whirlwind Campaign Has Had Little Effect on Him, Though It Is Feared His Voice May Not Hold Out at the Present Pace.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 5.—"Come in, 'Sunny Jim,' the water's fine," was the invitation given to the Republican vice presidential nominee Sunday, by a group of young Americans in swimming in the Ohio river. While Mr. Sherman was immensely tickled at the bid to take a plunge, he did not accept it. With the thermometer fluttering around the mid-summer point, the candidate, disregarding fashion's decrees, sallied forth in a lightweight summer suit and a straw hat to take a launch ride on the river. He was the guest of Congressman John W. Foster, who wanted to demonstrate to the congressmen from New York the need of an

JAMES SCHOOLCRAFT SHERMAN, appropriation from congress to deepen the channel of the Ohio stream. The river is the lowest at this point that it has been in years, and navigation has been suspended for the last six weeks. Mr. Sherman started out Sunday with the intention of resting preparatory to a week's hard campaigning through Indiana and Ohio, but before he got to the day's end, he had ridden twenty miles in an automobile, spent the better part of an hour in a launch on the river and played golf at the Country club, where he was the guest at a banquet tendered to him by Dr. W. H. Gilbert, one of the Republican leaders of the county.

Mr. Sherman started the day by attending the Presbyterian church, where he was surrounded after the services by a bevy of ladies, who were anxious to shake the candidate's hand and wish him success.

Starting at the southern boundary of the state, Mr. Sherman will travel to the northern line, visiting seven towns, in all of which he will speak. Although Mr. Sherman has come through the last ten days of whirlwind campaigning in excellent condition, it is feared that his voice may not hold out if the present fast pace is kept up.

GRAND LODGE MEETING

Indiana Knights and Ladies of Honor in Session.

Indianapolis, October 5.—The grand lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor, with representatives from seventy-nine subordinate lodges, will convene at the temple on North Pennsylvania street Tuesday.

The Knights and Ladies of Honor has its national headquarters in the temple and its supreme officers with a large clerical force reside here. The grand lodge is in a prosperous condition and its present administration has made a good showing for the order. Many new lodges and several thousand members have been added during their term of two years. Great preparations are being made to entertain the visiting members.

FLEET OUTRIDES THE HURRICANE

Battleships Caught by Typhoon
in Manila Bay

MANY HOURS OF APPREHENSION

For Twelve Hours a Hurricane Which at Times Attained a Velocity of 100 Miles an Hour Swept the Anchorage of the Atlantic Battleship Fleet, Subjecting Great Sea Fighters to Severe Test, Which They Stood Admirably, All Safely Outriding the Hurricane.

Manila, Oct. 5.—The Atlantic battleship fleet has safely outriden a hurricane which swept Manila bay for twelve hours and did much damage ashore. Typhoon signals were displayed early Sunday morning, but the storm broke over the bay suddenly and unexpectedly at noon. It was impossible to hoist the cutters and launches belonging to the fleet because of the danger of smashing them against the steel sides of the battleships, and the little craft were sent scurrying inside the breakwater into the Pasig river, where they remained all night.

The storm quickly increased in intensity and the torrential rains shut in the ships. At 8 o'clock Sunday night the storm had reached its height and it then gradually tapered down, until at midnight it was comparatively calm, although heavy seas swung across the harbor.

During the storm all the battleships had steam up ready for any emergency. Rear Admiral Sperry finally ordered the flagship Connecticut and the Kansas, Minnesota, Vermont, Virginia and Ohio under way. They were close to the breakwater, and Admiral Sperry feared they might drag anchors. The six vessels steamed down close to Cavite, where they anchored.

At times the wind blew at the rate of 100 miles an hour. All communication with shore was cut off. It was impossible during the height of the storm to see the warships through the haze of rain and spray.

On shore it was dangerous to go about. Several carriages were overturned by the wind, trees were blown down, electric wires were prostrated and several buildings were unroofed. Among the buildings unroofed was the depot of the commissary. Several naval officers ashore on various errands, were compelled to remain ashore all night.

In naval circles interest has been aroused by the approaching trial in this city of Lieutenant Frank Taylor Evans, son of Admiral "Bob" Evans, who is accused of insubordination and intoxication. Besides being the pride of "Fighting Bob's" heart, Lieutenant Evans has a reputation in the navy for dare-devil bravery.

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, Oct. 5.—This week the thirty-day poll, which furnishes the final pre-election analysis of the vote, will be taken by the Republican and Democratic state organizations. The result will not be known at their headquarters here much before the middle of October, as instructions have been given that the reports must be accurate. The Republicans have a system of poll-taking that was pronounced by National Chairman Hitchcock to be the most perfect in the country. By it the organization obtains a complete registration of all the voters with information that is supposed to indicate definitely how their ballots will be cast. Up to this year the Republicans have been able to take a better poll than the Democrats, owing to their more compact organization, but this time the Democrats are working together and are thought to be in shape to get a more reliable poll than ever before. Four years ago both sides were away off on their poll. In spite of the instructions given by the Republicans to their well-drilled workers to find out as nearly as possible how every man intended to vote, their thirty-day poll did not give any hint of the landslide that came on election day. The Republican poll then indicated that the state would give President Roosevelt less than 40,000. His plurality was 93,044, breaking all records for Indiana. The fact that the poll-takers were unable to detect signs of a landslide a month in advance of the last national election when there were no unusual disturbances in this state is causing the members of the Republican organization to feel shaky about the reports they have received in the six-months and and sixty-day polls.

Both sides seem satisfied with the sixty-day poll. The Republican leaders declare that the six-months poll showed that the drift was favorable to their party and that the sixty-day poll was just as good. They qualify their statements, however with the remark that the showing is fine in the smaller counties and in the farming communities, while it is not as good as it might be in the cities. Enough of the inside plans of the Republicans is known to warrant the statement that they are building hopes of victory on a heavy vote from the agricultural communities. One hears old-time politicians declare frequently that if the election were to be held now that Bryan would carry Indiana. However, the same condition existed both in 1896 and 1900, when Bryan apparently had McKinley beaten in Indiana a month before the election. The Republicans never have permitted the organization started by Captain Gowdy in 1896 to go backward. Its specialty has been its ability to make a whirlwind finish during the last thirty days of the campaign. That is what the Republicans of Indiana hope to do during the next thirty days, but from information obtained from those in authority to speak, the organization is not as well supplied with ammunition as in 1896 or 1900. In those campaigns the bottom of the Republican "barrel" here never was reached. There was more than enough to go around and it was not difficult to put hundreds of spellbinders and workers into the field. This time it is said that the national committee has not given the Republican state organization a penny. One of the campaign managers on the Republican side declared today that there is no prospect of the national committee lending a helping hand financially. In that respect at least the candidacy of Taft has been a disappointment to the professional politicians. While the Democratic politicians insist that Indiana is a pivotal state, in spite of the long line of defeats they have sustained since 1892, the Republicans assert that Indiana is normally 45,000 Republican on national issues. If that estimate is correct the Democrats must gain on an average of about eight Republican votes to the precinct in order to carry the state. Based on the thirty-day poll the Democratic state organization had four years ago, it would be necessary for their ticket to get an average of nine or ten Republican votes to the precinct. In addition it is believed that they would not only have to gain at least nine Republicans to the precinct, but they would be compelled to hold in line every member of their own party. The chances seem favorable to the Democrats coming nearer getting their own vote this year than at any time since Bryan became a presidential candidate.

At a meeting in the office of Governor Hanly the Andersonville monument commission decided to change the date for the dedication of the monument from Nov. 17 to Nov. 24. This change was made to get lower railroad rates to Andersonville. During the week of Nov. 24, homeseekers' rates will be in effect to the South, and the decrease in the fare, it is said, will amount to about $6. A round-trip fare of something like $17 will be obtained. It was stated today that Governor Hanly would attend the dedication and that he likely would be accompanied by his entire staff.

VIEWS OF AN EXPERT.

Shall Banks Be Made Liable for One Another's Debts?

Recognized Authority on Financial Questions Discusses Practical Bearings of Proposed Guarantee Plan.

By George E. Roberts, former Director of the Mint.)

The proposal to require the banks of the country to guarantee each other's deposits owes its present strength to the financial disturbance of last fall. It is urged as a means of preventing panics, and there is no disagreement about the desirability of accomplishing that purpose. Most of us agree that a repetition of the conditions which existed last fall should be made impossible, but this is by no means the only way to do it, or the best way.

For years the advocates of comprehensive currency reform have pointed out that with $14,000,000,000 of bank deposits in the country and only about $3,600,000,000 of money all told in the country, both in the banks and out, there should be some method provided by which, on the basis of good assets, the supply of lawful currency could be readily increased to meet exceptional demands, whether such demands were due to seasons of unusual business activity or to alarm among depositors. Their foresight and arguments did not avail, but they are hardly to be swept off their feet now by impatient zeal for this new, and, as they regard it, ill-considered scheme. They stand for a complete and scientific treatment of the subject.

The guaranty of deposits is a crude and imperfect remedy at best. It does not recognize or attempt to cure the defects in our banking and currency systems, but aims only at persuading depositors not to draw their deposits. The losses to depositors by the failure of national banks has become an insignificant percentage, and is growing less every year, as a result of natural, evolutionary progress in banking. The standards are being constantly raised, and the efficiency of official inspection and supervision constantly improved. The true line of development is not by any revolutionary policy, but by holding individual bankers to yet stricter account, and at the same time enabling every properly conducted bank to readily obtain a supply of currency to meet all demands upon it.

The fundamental weakness in our currency system is in the fact that it is not readily responsive to the needs of the country. The legitimate demand for money varies from year to year, and from season to season in the same year. It is a familiar fact that there is a great deal more business to be handled from September 1st to December 31st each year than in any other four months of the year, but there is no more money in the country unless gold is imported for the purpose.

Would Lead to Reckless Banking.

As a remedial measure the guaranty of bank deposits is not only inadequate, but it is worse than inadequate, for it proposes to overturn the principle of individual responsibility by means of which the banking business has been raised to its present high standards, and upon which all individual and social progress is based.

The proposal contemplates that the public shall be relieved entirely from the exercise of judgment and discrimination in the choice of banks, and while it is highly desirable that all banks shall be made safe, to the end that even the most ignorant and confiding may be protected, it is still true that an alert public opinion has great influence in maintaining proper banking standards. We cannot afford to do without that influence.

Under present conditions the investments, the personal habits, the general character and abilities of the banker are under the constant scrutiny of the community, and a matter of public interest. Notwithstanding occasional instances in which the public has been deceived, it may be stated as a general proposition that an unblemished character and a reputation for good business ability and conservative judgment have been necessary to success in the banking business. The public looks over the individual who is to receive, and invest and be responsible for its money with some discrimination, and the elimination of the unit by the scrutiny and composite judgment of the community is a factor of the highest value in maintaining the standards of the banking business. It is, however, a factor entirely overlooked by the advocates of this scheme.

They calculate the insignificant percentage of loss to total deposits under present conditions, and assume that no greater losses would occur after character ceased to be a factor in the business, and all deposits were given blindly to whoever would bid highest for them. To the objection that this elimination of character as a factor in the acquisition of deposits must tend to promote reckless banking, reply is made that bankers will be deterred from recklessness by fear of losing their own money. The reply misses the point. All men are not deterred from recklessness by fear of losing their own money, but reckless men are now as a rule, kept out of the banking business by the unwillingness of the public to entrust money to their care.

Careful Banking Best.

Under present conditions there are compensations in favor of careful and conservative banking. There are people who are not influenced in their selection of a bank by the highest rate of interest offered on deposits, and who have their suspicions aroused by the tender of exceptional inducements. They know that such offers put a strain upon the business, and they deliberately prefer to place their money with a banker who will not subject himself to such strain. These depositors esteem safety above all other considerations, and they are numerous enough to exercise a very wholesome restraint upon reckless tendencies in the business. A banker now prizes the reputation of doing a safe business, and cannot afford to have a reputation for imprudence and speculative inclinations. And yet, although held in check by these powerful considerations, the pressure of competition carries the business near the danger line even now. There is too much competition for deposits, and the ambitions of the more venturesome members of the fraternity, and the pace they set, puts the whole system under strain.

But what are likely to be the conditions in the business when the public is no longer concerned about the management of a bank, and all the restraints for conservatism and restraints upon recklessness are removed? The considerations which in the past have tended to safeguard the business and advance its standards would be gone. The public would care nothing for the personality of the banker. Instead of looking to the institution which received the deposits, the depositor would rely on an outside fund. A banker might bet all the deposits on horse races without the fact becoming a matter of any concern to his customers.

And how would the conservative, prudent banker fare under these conditions? The legitimate reward for maintaining that character would be lost to him. He would get no deposits unless he bid as high for them as his rivals, for the government would stand behind the latter, and assure the public that they were just as safe as he, and tax him to make them so. In short the reckless and incompetent people, who are now either excluded from the banking business, or held in check by the distrust which a discriminating public feels towards them, would make the pace to which everybody else in the banking business would be obliged to conform or get out of the business.

Would Demoralize Business.

The hardest competitor in any line of business is the incompetent or dishonest man who does anything to get business. Such people get into the banking business even now, but their number and influence for mischief would be greatly increased if they were backed up by unlimited credit. In other lines there may be some question as to the quality or service offered by rivals, but all bankers deal in the same kind of money, and if deposits were made a joint liability, there is no reason why they should not go to the bankers who offer the greatest inducements to attract them. The careful banker would have no off-set or protection against demoralizing competition, and he would be placed in the strange position of being liable for his competitor's obligations.

All efforts to make it appear that the interests of bankers are on one side of this question and the interests of depositors on the other are untrue to the facts. Nothing that in the long run is harmful to the banking business, that puts it under strain and tends to lower its standards, can be beneficial to depositors or the public. It cannot be advantageous to the community to have its savings and working capital pass into the hands of the venturesome class of bankers who will bid most for them. The actual waste and loss through unwise investments would inevitably increase. It would fall at first on the conservative bankers and penalize them. Instead of an elimination of the unfit, which is the true process of evolution, the tendency would be to an elimination of the best. Eventually the burden of increasing waste would have to be borne by all depositors and the whole community.

Oklahoma Trial Inconclusive.

The fact that the first bank failure in Oklahoma after the law went into effect, was followed by immediate reimbursement of the depositors, proves nothing as to the practicability of the system in the long run. The fact that the State banks of Oklahoma have gained deposits since the system went into operation, while national banks within the State have lost, if true, proves nothing as to the merits of the system. The law itself requires that all public deposits must be kept in banks that belong to the system, and this provision alone would cause a considerable transfer of deposits and influence some banks to join the system. The real test of the policy will come in its influence upon the banking business in the long run. Will it tend to secure more careful and prudent investment of the vast sums which the people of the country keep in banks, or will it tend to weaken the personal responsibility for these funds and divert them into incapable and wasteful hands. It is a superficial view which lays all emphasis upon the immediate results of the law and gives no consideration to its violation of fundamental principles and the consequences which must follow.

DETAILS OF THE POSTAL SAVINGS PLAN

Prompt Performance of Republican Platform Promise Is Certain.

Postal Savings Banks Will Form Save and Convenient System for Accumulating Savings.

A bill providing for the establishment of postal savings banks was favorably reported by the United States Senate Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads during the recent session of Congress, and is reasonably certain to be enacted into law during the coming session, thus adding prompt performance to the promise of the Republican national platform relative to this form of strengthening our national system of finance.

The bill reported provides for the establishment of postal savings depositories for depositing savings at interest with the security of the Government for the repayment thereof and designates the money-order post-offices and such others as the Postmaster-General may, in his discretion, from time to time designate as savings depositories to receive deposits from the public and to account and dispose of the same according to the terms of the act.

The depositories are to be kept open for the transaction of business every day, Sundays and legal holidays excepted, during the usual post-office business hours of the town and localities where the respective depositories are located, and during such additional hours as the Postmaster-General may designate.

Accounts may be opened by any person of the age of 10 years, and a married woman may open an account free from interference by her husband. A trustee may open an account for another person. No person can open more than one saving account except when acting as trustee for another person.

A depositor's pass book will be delivered to each depositor in which the name and other memoranda necessary for identification will be entered, and entry of all deposits shall be made.

One dollar or a larger amount in multiples of 10 cents will be necessary to open an account, but deposits of 10 cents or multiples thereof will be received after an account is opened.

Upon receiving a deposit the postmaster is required to enter the same in the pass book of the depositor and immediately notify the Postmaster-General of the amount of the deposit and the name of the depositor. The Postmaster-General, upon receipt of such notice, is required to send an acknowledgment thereof to the depositor, which acknowledgment shall constitute conclusive evidence of the making of such deposit.

Interest Allowed on Deposits.

Interest is allowed at the rate of 2 per cent per annum, computed annually, on the average deposit during each quarter of the year. One thousand dollars is the maximum deposit allowed to the credit of any one account, and interest will not be paid on any amount to the credit of an account in excess of $500.

Pass books must be forwarded to the Postmaster-General on the anniversary of the making of the first deposit for verification, posting, and credit of interest due. Withdrawals may be made under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Postmaster-General. Deposits are exempt from seizure under any legal process against the depositor and they are also exempt from taxation by the United States or any state. The name of a depositor or the amount to his or her credit may not be disclosed unless by order of the Postmaster-General.

Postal savings funds are to be deposited by the Postmaster-General in national banks located as near as may be in the neighborhood where such deposits were received at a rate of interest not less than 2 1/4 per cent per annum. If deposits can not be made in national banks at the specified rate of interest, the Postmaster-General may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Attorney-General, invest the same in State, Territorial, county, or municipal bonds.

TAFT'S INJUNCTIONS.

I ask that every responsible and fair-minded labor leader, every responsible and fair-minded member of a labor organization, read these (Taft's) injunctions for himself. If he will do so, instead of condemning them he will heartily approve of them and will recognize this further astonishing fact that the principles laid down by Judge Taft in these very injunctions, which laboring people are asked to condemn, are themselves the very principles which are now embodied in the laws or practices of every responsible labor organization. The principles which he therein so wisely and fearlessly laid down serve as a charter of liberty for all of us, for wage workers, for employers, or the general public; for they rest on the principles of fair dealing for all, of even-handed justice for all. They mark the judge who rendered them as standing for the rights of the whole people; as far as daylight is from darkness, so far is such a judge from the time-server, the truckler to the mob, or the cringing tool of great, corrupt and corrupting corporations.—President Roosevelt.

"A STATESMAN WITH A CONSCIENCE."

Description of the Republican Presidential Candidate by Senator Borah of Idaho. (From Senator Borah's Boston Speech.)

"Now, it seems to be conceded by friend and foe that few men have been nominated for the presidency whose experience, whose training and whose sound and wholesome fashion of grasping and dealing with public questions were equal to those of William H. Taft.

"He is not a crusader, he is a statesman with conscience. He has won his present position through a cheerful, unhesitating and undeviating devotion to duty, through actually achieving things on the open field of action, through an intelligent conception of the strength and worth of our great government with its checks and balances; and the strength and capacity of our citizenship with its loyalty and its patriotism.

"No man ever had a deeper regard for the fundamental principles and precepts upon which this government is founded, and no one ever had a firmer conviction that the constitution is a sufficient chart by which to measure all rights and obligations and to gauge all the demands and all the aspirations and restrain and control all the recklessness of this indomitable race of ours. Trained in the law, eleven years on the bench, he explored well the sources of jurisprudence and carried away from his work an everlasting devotion to order and justice.

"Under all circumstances and under all emergencies, he has proved himself a brave, clean-minded, self-poised and courageous statesman. No man can put his finger upon a little or cowardly act, an incompetent or questionable piece of public service—no stain upon his private life, no shadow upon his public career. And standing now in the full fierce light which beats upon a throne, with eager eyes scrutinizing every act of a long and arduous public career, no doubt arises as to his experience and ability, no challenge comes to his fine sense of duty or his patriotism."

I believe our strong party with its great principles is only in its infancy. Our glory as a nation has but just begun. There are mighty problems yet to be solved, grave questions to be answered, complex issues to be wrought out, but I believe we can trust the Grand Old Party and its leaders to care for the entire future of our Nation and of our people as it has cared for them so well in the past.—Hon. James S. Sherman.

In Des Moines Mr. Bryan talked free trade, in Indianapolis sailed into corporations, and in Topeka proclaimed the necessity of the guarantee of bank deposits. Mr. Bryan is geographically adjustable at a moment's notice, and never dismayed when one of his paramount issues blows up.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Great rejoicing followed the passage of the county option law. And with the rejoicing were paeans of praise to those who contributed to the result. The men who voted for the bill have been praised, and justly so; Governor Hanly has been given due credit for his courage and zeal; the preachers have been lauded for their part in the battle; the Democrats who stepped over the party line have been exalted for their moral courage. In fact, everybody and every organization that had anything to do with the matter are claiming or receiving their meet of praise except the very force that has done most to arouse the public conscience and mould public opinion that have forced the fight to a triumphant issue. And that force is the country press of the State. By the country press we mean the dailies and weeklies outside of a few large cities. For months these Republican papers have been battling unitedly and loyally for county local option. While the big dailies in the large cities were either giving aid and comfort to the enemy or were half-hearted and sickly in support of the moral reform, the country press was fighting the brewers and saloons and their allies to a finish.

The preachers and "good people" were largely dormant until Tom Marshall made an assault on them and then they aroused themselves and "got busy." But the country press has been busy from the time the platform was adopted and has made county local option the "paramount issue." It is generally conceded that public opinion was responsible for the passage of the bill. But who moulded this public opinion? Was it the enthusiasts and zealots who jumped into the fray in the last round or was it the sober, serious, thoughtful utterances of the press that were read and considered around the firesides and the family altars?

And so, without claiming any undue credit, we think the country press is entitled to just a little credit for the victory of September 26th.

Bryan has repeatedly urged government ownership of the railroads as the only solution of what he calls "the railroad question" and has declared his belief that "they must ultimately become public property and be managed by public officials." According to Poor Manual in 1907, there were 1,672,074 railway employees in the United States, and as, according to the Democratic platform, even a letter carrier becomes, on appointment, a "retainer and dependent" of the administration, Bryan would have nearly two millions of retainers and dependents added to the official roll, enabling him to keep himself and his party "in power at the public expense"—another quotation from that part of the Democratic platform which denounces as "unnecessary and wasteful" the employment of rural free delivery carriers, seamen for the navy, etc.

Bryan's compulsory guarantee of bank deposits would, if put into effect, bring at least all the national banks of the country and probably all the State banking institutions, including savings banks, within the scope of his guarantee plan and give to the Washington administration a grasp upon the money interests of the United States far beyond anything heretofore suggested by even the most pronounced advocate of centralization.

Bryan's plan for curbing malfactors of great wealth—originally conceived by those unselfish foes of monopoly, J. D. Rockefeller, Archbold and Rogers—which proposes to give a federal license to big corporations without having their digestion interfered with, is another brilliant scheme for helping the people to rule, although where the people's share of the ruling would come in is invisible to the average mind, not trained in the peculiar logic by which Bryan arrives at conclusions.

With railway employees under his thumb, with all the banks of the country whipped into his guarantee system, and with the big monopolies holding federal licenses issued and presumably revocable at his pleasure, Bryan, his dreams of power realized, would be virtually a dictator, holding trade, finance and industry at his mercy, and with an official army of millions of "retainers and dependents," as his own platform calls government employees, ready to carry out his will.

And this would be Bryan's answer—should a national fit of insanity enable him to carry his vagaries into practice—to Bryan's campaign query, "Shall the people rule?"

education was that of a crook. This pleased the burglar exceedingly and the two had many heart-to-heart chats over jobs they had pulled off in the past. Campbell, who is a smooth conversationalist, recounted to Zearinger how he had been caught several times, but pulling off gun plays, succeeded in getting away. Then it was that Zearinger told him of his plans to escape, and the two were going out together and form a partnership in the illicit business. Zearinger told him of robberies he had committed at Danville, Urbana, and other Illinois cities before he came to Rushville. During the holidays last season he said he robbed a number of candy stores. At one place he burglarized a store and got away with the cash register. He found it empty, and "just for spite," he returned it and placed it in front of the store where he had secured it, leaving a sarcastic note behind. A number of other escapades were recited to the printer, who absorbed the stories and always "went the fellow one better."

The manner in which Zearinger conducted himself and the desperate character he has proven to be, will be the cause of the prison authorities dealing with him without consideration, and showing him no favors or sympathy. When the sheriff takes a prisoner to the State institution, he can often recommend that they make a trusty of their man, if indeed he merits it.

Minnie Blackburn, now held in jail for attempting to aid a criminal escape, is a demure and comely looking little girl of nineteen years. The girl is a cheerful prisoner and denies any connection with the case, saying if saws were in the books she took to Wolf, she was not aware of it. She admits writing letters to Zearinger since he has been in jail and that she did not know him until after he was placed in jail.

BELMONT LOTS ARE GOING FAST

Ground in New Addition to City Being Purchased by the Best People.

SIXTY-ONE HAVE BEEN SOLD

Large Crowd of People Visited Lots Sunday and Were Delighted With Situation.

The sale of lots in Belmont addition, the handsome plat out North Main street in the best residence section of Rushville, attracted hundreds of people yesterday and the lots sold very rapidly, 61 of them being disposed of by evening. This left 35 lots for sale, a number of which were sold today. There are still a goodly number of choice lots left unsold but they will not last long at the present rate.

The lots are all level and beautiful and the fact that they are in such a splendid neighborhood, coupled with the remarkably easy terms on which they are sold makes it certain that Belmont will be entirely sold out before the end of the week. The payments on these lots are one dollar down, then 50 cents a week without any interest whatever and with free taxes for three years. Main street is to be paved to a point just beyond Belmont without expense to the lot buyers, a resolution to that effect having been adopted by council recently.

Yesterday's large crowd of visitors was delighted with the new plat and the manner in which the streets had been graded through it. It is a credit to Rushville, and the active sale shows what a demand there is for good building lots in this city. It is the intention of Grover & Layman, who own Belmont, to always keep the addition in such condition to be a credit to the city. The class of buyers is a most excellent one. Salesmen will be on the lots every day until dark.

AILEEN WILSON GOT THE MONEY

Little Rushville Mare Made a Clean Sweep at Columbus, Ohio, Races.

AT LEXINGTON THIS WEEK

Aileen Wilson again swept the field at Columbus, Ohio, Saturday, when she took the 2:05 pace in straight heats. The best time in the three heats was 2:03 1/4. The little mare will start at Lexington this week and there is considerable interest among horsemen over the outcome.

Here's Where the Fun Comes In

She rushed out of her back door, ran to the fence, and called her neighbor. She called a second time in another second. She could not wait longer. She must tell Mrs. Didntknow at once.

"Yes, what is it Mrs. Wantto-know," said the neighbor as she opened the door and her ears to hear the gossip.

"Oh mercy! Don't you know. I've got the best joke. Oh, it's great. For once in my life I've got even with somebody," and the woman stopped for breath.

"Well, well, what is it. Oh please tell me," and Mrs. Didntknow began to get nervous.

"Yes, it's the best joke. Oh, I just can't tell it for laughing. Don't you know I've beat the milkman out of some money. Never was as glad to hear anything in my life as I was to hear that the price of milk had raised. I just bought 50 cents worth of tickets last night."

USE OF AEROPLANES IN WAR.

Could Drop Shell From Them Into Ship Funnel, Says Orville Wright.

The chance remark of a sergeant of artillery at Fort Myer during the recent aeroplane flights of Orville Wright, the famous aeronaut, was the basis for a discussion of one of the most important features of the government's interest in aerial craft for purposes of war. The discussion took place at a dinner tendered to Mr. Wright by naval officers. Said the sergeant, "Airships aren't any good to launch a shell from because you can't get the 'centrifugal force' that is necessary to hit an object."

The idea which the noncommissioned officer intended to convey was that the whirling motion given a shell by the modern steel bore guns could not be accomplished in dropping an explosive shell from an airship.

The main facts brought out in the discussion of the aeroplane as an instrument of war were that a machine such as that of the Wright brothers would be practically invulnerable as a target for the enemy's guns, that with a little target practice an explosive could be dropped on a war vessel with damaging results and that the aerial war craft could be launched from the deck of a battleship.

Mr. Wright said that he had made experiments with a swinging weight to see how closely he could hit objects over which he was flying.

"I found that after a little practice it became comparatively easy to put the weight just where I wanted to," said Mr. Wright. "One allowance which must be made is the effect of a wind striking the course of the airship at right angles."

"On your present machine how much weight could be added in the shape of a gun?" Mr. Wright was asked by Lieutenant Sweet, the naval officer detailed to observe the Fort Myer aeronautical tests.

"One hundred and fifty pounds," Mr. Wright replied.

The merits of launching an explosive from a gun were then discussed. Mr. Wright said there would not be sufficient "kick" to cause the aeroplane to diverge from its course. A shell could be dropped into the funnel of a warship, causing terrible damage to the machinery and completing its work of destruction by bursting the boilers.

A FROHMAN JOKE.

Brother Daniel Springs It on the Theatrical Managers' Meeting.

Daniel Frohman, the theatrical manager, exploded this at a recent meeting of the Theater Managers' association in the Hotel Astor, at New York city. The managers were discussing Rostand's new play, "Chanticleer," in which Coquelin may appear in the United States. It is a play of birds, symbolic of human emotions. The discussion aroused much interest.

"In what language do the birds speak?" asked a facetious manager. "All French except the chanticleer," said Mr. Frohman quickly, "and he speaks cockney."

SALOON MEN ARE REDUCING STOCK

Liquor Dealers Buying in Conservative Manner Since County Option Was Passed.

THEY ARE MAKING A CANVASS

The saloon men all over the State have been taking a serious canvass of the situation since the enactment of the county local option law. Those dealers who usually carry heavy stocks have been gradually reducing the amount of their wares, and, in some instances, orders with wholesale houses have been made contingent upon the success or failure of the action of the legislature.

IS THIS A SQUARE DEAL?

F. B. Johnson, the Druggist, will give
You Your Money
Back if MI-O-NA
Does Not Cure
Dyspepsia.

Johnson's Drug Store makes this square deal offer because they are authorized to do so by the makers of Mi-o-na tablets and they are willing to have this statement appear in the Republican because they know the offer is genuine.

And while it may be that there are about cases in 100 that are too far gone for Mi-o-na to cure, we are willing and ready to take all the chances, and if Mi-o-na does not cure, any dispeptic can have his money back.

Even with this liberal offer, Johnson's drug store will not have to refund but a very small percentage, because the incurable dispeptics will find so much relief in Mi-o-na that they will once again look upon the sunny side of life, and will continue to use Mi-o-na.

Now, reader, you may say how can the makers of Mi-o-na make such an offer? How do they know that 92 per cent of the users will be cured, and that the other 8 per cent., or the incurables, will be relieved?

Why, it's all very simple. We've made this same offer in 1000 towns before we made it here, and we have figured out the percentages, so that when we make the statement we know it to be absolutely true.

"Mi-o-na tablets are truly great for anyone that has stomach trouble.
I can not praise them too highly for what they have done for me." —Mrs.
W. D. Bennett, Bucksport, Me.

The price is only 50 cents a box.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON * COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

I could tell which were the poor things that Mrs. Ess Kay wanted to weed out of her acquaintance garden for next season, by the way she acted when they came to say "How do you do?" to her. She screwed up her eyes till they looked hard and sharp enough to go through you like a thin knife or more like a long, slender batpin jabbing your head, and having waited an instant before returning their greeting, slowly answered: "Very well, thank you. Yes, I am going home rather early. I'm due at Newport as soon as possible," then fingered her open book, which she hadn't peeped into before, and made a little, just noticeable gesture with her forefinger.

Then the poor people were too much crushed to stop and try to talk to Miss Woodburn, though she always looked at them sweetly, as if she would make up for her cousin being a dragon if she could.

By and by, somebody else would sail up, perhaps not half as nice to look at as the one who had gone. But lo, Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox would be suddenly transformed. She would smile and hold out her hand. To their "How do you do?" she would respond "How do you do?" and though I don't think she's really much interested in any one but herself, she would ask where they had been, what they had been doing and how it happened they were going back so soon. The next thing, she would say to me: "Betty, dear, I should like you and Mrs. So-and-so to know each other, as I hope you'll meet again, while you're staying with me Lady Betty Bulkeley, etc., etc. I wonder if you have ever met her brother, the Duke of Stanforth, and her cousin, the Marquis of Loveland, over in London?"

Loveland would have had a fit if he could have heard her, for of course at home only the lower middle classes of such people burl a marquis' title at his head in that fashion, but I suppose foreigners, unless they've been in England a long time, don't know the difference.

When I got a chance, I asked Sally Woodburn how Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox made her distinctions in snubbing some people and preening herself to others.

"My dear," said Sally (I'm to call her "Sally" now; it's been understood between us for some time, "my dear, you're a poor, innocent child, and I reckon you've been brought up in darkness, without even so much as hearing of the Four Hundred?")

"What are the Four Hundred? Are they a kind of light brigade, like the Six Hundred?" I asked. "Or is it a sort of governing body like—the Council of Three?"

She laughed so much at this, with her charming, velvety laugh, that I grew quite nervous, for it's embarrassing to have said something funny when you've meant to be rather intelligent. But soon she took pity on me. "You perfect love," she said, "that's really too sweet. It deserves to be put in Life, or something. And yet you're not so far wrong, when one comes to think of it. The Four Hundred is a kind of governing body, only I believe it's really reduced to Two Hundred now. They govern New York, and Newport, and Lennox, and Bar Harbor, and several other places which are considered very nice and important."

"Oh! Are they Republicans or Democrats?" I inquired, sure that I really was being intelligent at last, for I'd heard Stan say that in America the Republican party was rather like our Conservatives, and the Democrats like our Liberals, and I'd remembered because I believe I should be very much interested in politics if only I understood more about them. But Sally seemed to think that question funny too.

"They can be either, my poor lamb," she exclaimed, "and they can be almost anything else they like if only they're just awfully, dreadfully rich and can manage to scrape up a family crest. It used to be the crest that counted with the man who invented the Four Hundred, but since his day that idea has got buried under heaps and heaps of gold, and pearls and diamonds, especially pearls. In those places I was telling you about you don't exist unless you're in the Four Hundred, which is now being sifted down to Two Hundred, and will probably be Seventy-five in a year or two. You may have the bluest blood in America in your veins; you may be simply smeared with ancestors, but if you haven't managed to push forward in a clever, indescribable way, neither you nor your wife will be noticed, and your gray hairs will go down to the grave in the wrong set. Now do you understand why my cousin Katherine makes narrow eyes for some people and broad smiles for others?"

"Ye-es, I suppose I do," I answered. "Only—we are quite different at home. I haven't been about at all yet, but I know; because some things are in the air. How did Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox ever have the poor wrong setters for acquaintances, though?"

"Because (she'd kill me if she heard this) she has only lately got into the right set herself and after trouble enough to give an ordinary woman nervous prostration. That kind of thing does give it to a lot of women—especially if they fail. But Cousin Katherine very seldom fails. She almost always carries things through. If you knew anything about America in general and New York in particular you'd be able to realize what a hard time she's had, when I tell you that till her husband died she lived west of Chicago. To get into the Four Hundred if you've lived west of Chicago (unless you're Californian, which I getting to be fashionable, is just like having to climb over one of those great, high walls of yours in England, bristling with nails or broken glass."

"My goodness!" I exclaimed. "How, funny! Fancy if people who live in Surrey should glare at people who live in Devonshire."

"That's different. You see, Chicago is new."

"But so is all America, isn't it?" I asked stupidly. "What difference can a hundred or so years make?"

"We haven't begun to think in centuries yet on our side of the water, my dear." (She has the most delicious way of saying "my dear," and all her "rs" are soft like that; only it's too much trouble to write them for nobody but myself to see.) "Anyhow, it is so, between New York and Chicago people—that is, the people who count

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with in Society with a big S—and it was a great triumph for my cousin to become the three hundred and ninety-ninth in the Four Hundred. She did it by buying a Russian prince."

Dr. Shoop's Restorative

"Buying a"—

"Yes, love, he was going to the highest bidder, and she bought him. That is, she entertained him so gorgeously and did so many nice things for him that he posed as her property, and, as every one was dying to meet him, it made her. She'd been working killing hard before that, for a whole year after taking her house on Fifth avenue and building her cottage at Newport, but it was buying the prince which did the trick. On the strength of that episode and its consequences she went to Europe with very nice introductions, and, as you know, dear, she has made some valuable as well as pleasant friends. To live up to them and her reputation, she will have to be busy for a while dropping a lot of old acquaintances."

"How horrid!" I couldn't help exclaiming, though Mrs. Ess Kay was going to be my hostess.

"Yes, it seems rather miserable to me because I'm a weak, lazy, southern being, who would be right down sick if I had to hurt any human being's feelings. Yet perhaps it looks fair to her. She's so ambitious, and she's worked so hard she has deserved to succeed. As for poor me, she just regularly mesmerized me all through. She mesmerized me into coming up from Kentucky and visiting her this spring. Then she mesmerized me into going with her to Europe. But I'm not sorry I went, for I've had a right good time."

"I'm so glad you went," said I, "because if you hadn't I shouldn't have met you. I'm sure I should love Kentucky if all the people there are like you. But these things you've been saying seem so odd. Do you mean to tell me that the people who lead society in New York want to keep their set limited to a certain number and refuse to know others, even if they're extraordinarily clever and interesting?"

"They don't like them to be too clever because they call such people 'queer'—that is, unless they happen to be 'lions' of some sort from England or other places abroad. Then so long as they're not American, they welcome them with open arms."

"I'm glad society isn't like that in England," I said. "There the real people—the people who have the right to make social laws, you know—are delighted with any one who can amuse them. Of course deep down in our hearts we may be proud if we have old names, which have been famous for hundreds of years in one way or another, but we are so used, after all those centuries, to being sure of ourselves that we just take our position for granted and don't think much more about it. If people who haven't got quite the same position are genteel and amusing or clever or beautiful or anything like that which really matters, why, we're only too pleased with them."

"That's all the difference in the world! You've been sure of yourselves for centuries." You've said the last word, my dear. "Out of the mouths of babes"—but Cousin Katherine's finished gushing to that silly old Mrs. Vander Windt. We mustn't dare discuss these things from our point of view any more. I reckon she would faint."

There are a good many young men on board, and some of them seemed to be quite devoted to Mrs. Ess Kay the first day out, but she was cold to them all, I couldn't think why, as some of them seemed very nice, and she had always appeared rather to like being with men. I asked Sally about it, but she laughed and said I might perhaps solve the mystery myself when we were at Newport if I remembered it then.

I never heard of such breakfasts and luncheons as they have on this ship, and the first menu I saw surprised me so much that I couldn't believe they really had and could produce all those things if anybody was inconsiderate enough to ask for them. I hardly supposed there were so many things to eat in the world. But the captain heard me exclaiming to Sally, so he smiled and told me to test the menu by ordering a bit of everything on it. He'd guarantee that nothing would be missed out. This was at breakfast the second day, and when he saw that I ate several dear little round things shaped like cream colored dollies, which are called pancakes (though they aren't a bit like ours) with some perfectly divine stuff named maple sirup, he said my taking such a fancy to American products was a sign that I should marry an American.

What nonsense! As if I would dream of marrying, especially a foreigner. But for all that pancakes and maple sirup are delicious. I've had them every day since for breakfast, after finishing a great orange four times the natural size, which isn't really an orange, because it's a grape fruit. You have it on your plate cut in two halves, with ice in each, and you scoop the inside out of a lot of tiny pockets with a teaspoon. You think when you first see it that you can't eat more than half, but instead you eat every bit, and sometimes if the morning is hot you even wish you could have more, though, of course, you wouldn't be so greedy as to ask.

It was on the second day out, too, that all my troubles began—and in a queer way which nobody could have guessed would lead to anything disagreeable.

HOME NEWS.

Of Interest to Everyone in Rushville.

In every newspaper in the country you will read statements made by people living in out-of-the-way places who are supposed to have been cured, or derived great benefit from some wonderful remedy or "cure-all." But here in Rushville we only publish statements made by Rushville people—the testimony of your friends, neighbors and fellow townsmen.

Mrs. W. A. Wylie, 1029 North Sexton street, Rushville, Ind., says: "My husband had typhoid fever and after recovering found that his kidneys were in a weakened condition. The secretions from these organs passed too frequently and caused him to arise many times during the night. His back was lame and ached a great deal and he suffered from frequent headaches. When he saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised he procured a box at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s drug store. They quickly corrected the kidney trouble and restored strength to his back. The pain also left his back together with the headaches. Mr. Wylie thinks highly of Doan's Kidney Pills and is pleased to recommend them to other sufferers of kidney complaint."

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS

Machinery of Congress Already Started for Postal Savings Bank Law.

A Safe and Sane Plan for the Convenience of the People and the Encouragement of Thrift.

"We favor the establishment of a postal savings bank system for the convenience of the people and the encouragement of thrift."

This is the declaration of the Republican national platform, and postal savings banks will without doubt be authorized by law and established as a part of our financial system by the action of Congress at its coming session, which will be convened in December. Indeed, much has already been accomplished towards the enactment of this law. At the last session of Congress a bill was carefully prepared which met with the approval of the Postmaster General, and was reported upon favorably by the Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads. This bill is now on the Senate calendar and can be acted upon as soon as Congress is convened.

The scope of the proposed law is set forth in the committee report, which is in part as follows:

Committee Report.

The purpose of this bill is to place at the disposal of people of small means the machinery of the Postoffice Department to aid and encourage them to save their earnings. The subject of postal savings banks or depositories is not new in this country and it may be truly said to be quite familiar to the people of Europe and the British colonies. The propriety of establishing postal savings banks became the subject of discussion in England as early as 1807. Every objection to such use of the postoffice facilities urged in this country was vigorously pressed in the long-continued discussion of the subject in England.

For over fifty years private savings institutions waged bitter opposition to the growing sentiment in favor of postal savings banks, but notwithstanding such opposition in 1861 an act of Parliament was passed entitled "An act to grant additional facilities for depositing small savings with the security of the government for the due repayment thereof." That the alarm of private institutions was ill founded is amply proven by the recorded fact that the private savings banks increased their capital by more than ten millions of dollars in the first fifteen years following the establishment of postal savings institutions.

That the postal savings institutions proved successful is satisfactorily attested by the fact that no backward step has ever been taken in England on this subject and by the further fact that in rapid succession the lead of England was taken by other countries. The primary purpose of these institutions is to encourage thrift and a saving disposition among the people of small means by placing at their disposal in every part of the country ready facilities for the depositing of small sums, with absolute assurance of repayment on demand with a low rate of interest on a limited aggregate amount.

Postal Savings Banks Needed.

In certain parts of our country savings institutions are sufficiently numerous to accommodate the people, but such areas are quite limited, being confined to New England and New York. It is alleged that by reason of the number and location of savings banks there is one savings account to every two of the population of New England, whereas in all the country outside New England and New York the average is only one savings account to every 157 of the population. Taking such figures to be approximately correct and recognizing the fact that the people of all sections of this country are pretty much the same in habits, inclinations, and purposes, it must be obvious to the most casual observer that the people of the South, the Middle West, and the West do not save their earnings as do those of New England from the mere want of secure places in which deposits may be made.

To those who feel inclined to believe that the establishment of postal savings depositories will involve an element of paternalism it seems quite sufficient to suggest that the machinery of the Postoffice Department is now in existence and will continue to exist without diminution of expense whether such depositories are created or not and that the establishment of these depositories for the benefit of the people will not involve one farthing of loss to the Post-Office Department, but will probably, on the contrary, prove more than self-sustaining. Very slight computation will clearly demonstrate that the postal savings depositories can not burden the Post-Office Department with any additional deficiency.

If I am elected President, I shall urge upon Congress, with every hope of success, that a law be passed requiring a fling in a Federal office of a statement of the contributions received by committees and candidates in elections for members of Congress and in such other elections as are constitutionally within the control of Congress.—From Hon. Wm. H. Taft's speech accepting Presidential nomination.

Jealous Man's Shocking Deed.

Bristol, Tenn., Oct. 5.—Johnson City was the scene of a shocking triple tragedy when William Bales, thirty years old, went to the home of his brother-in-law, Burney Bayless, and without a word of warning split Bayless's head open with an ax, killing him instantly, following which he turned on his own wife, who was visiting at the home of Bayless, and, following her into the yard, brained her with the same weapon. Bales was arrested and hurried to jail. To control him it became necessary to tie him with a rope and with this rope he hanged himself in his cell and was dead when discovered. The cause of the tragedy was insane jealousy on the part of Bales.

Allman Found Guilty.

Princeton, Ind., Oct. 5.—After being out two hours a jury found John Allman, slayer of Conrad Kohlmeier, his sweetheart's father, guilty of first degree murder and imposed a life sentence. Allman's testimony strengthened the case against himself, his only defense being that Kohlmeier had threatened to kill him, and he believed it necessary to kill Kohlmeier first. He went to Kohlmeier's house after dusk and shot his victim in the back.

Kentuckian Shot From Ambush.

Dawson Springs, Ky., Oct. 5.—John Holman, a liverman of this city, was shot and fatally wounded by Claude Snyder, Snyder, it is alleged, had threatened to kill Holman, and the latter went to Madisonville to escape being murdered. Upon his return to this city Snyder, it is said, lay in ambush and shot Holman with the fatal result stated. Snyder escaped and has not been apprehended.

Who Breaks the Dishes?

"Jason," said Mrs. Calliper to her husband as they sat at dinner, "I went this afternoon to the china closet to get a certain glass dish that I wanted. When I picked it up I lifted only half of it. The other half remained on the shelf. Somebody had broken it and then placed it there in that way so that they wouldn't have to tell me about it. Now, of course, neither you nor I broke that dish, the children didn't break it, the servants didn't break it. Now, how did it get broken?"

"Expansion and contraction!"—

"Jason!"

"Well, Cynthia," said Mr. Calliper soothingly, "you ought not to worry about that dish. Science has in recent years made great advances, and many things which were once mysterious are now as clear to us as the pages of an open book. But the question, 'Who breaks the dishes?' has never been answered, and it is not likely that it ever will be, and why, my dear, should you waste your time in trying to discover the undiscoverable?"

Pittsburg was Sunday eliminated
from the National League pennant race when Chicago scored a 5 to 2 victory before a crowd which was declared to be the largest which ever paid to see a game of baseball in the world. The game was the final one of the season for Chicago and Pittsburg, while New York has three more to play, all with Boston. If one of these games is not played by reason of the weather or for other cause, or if Boston wins one, the pennant will go to Chicago for the third successive year. By winning all three New York will exactly equal Chicago's percentage of .641.

Chicago defeated Detroit 3 to 1 in the opening game of the final series
at Chicago Sunday, making it just possible for the Chicago team to win the American League pennant. To do this, however, Chicago must win the two remaining games with Detroit while Cleveland loses one game with St.
Louis. By reason of the Cleveland-St.
Louis tie Sunday these teams still have three games to play. By winning all of them, Cleveland would get the pennant, provided Detroit loses another game to Chicago. By winning one of the remaining two games from Chicago Detroit will win if Cleveland drops two to St. Louis. The finish of the American League race is therefore narrower and more exciting than ever.

BLOODY WORK OF MOB

Even Infant in Arms Fell Beneath This Gang's Blind Fury.

Hickman, Ky., Oct. 5.—David Walker,
a negro, his five-year-old daughter
and his baby child were killed outright,
the mother, who was holding the babe in her arms, was fatally shot, and three other children will probably die
as a result of a mob's visit to the Walker home near here. In addition, the oldest son is missing and is supposed to have been burned with the negro's cabin, which was fired by the mob. Walker had cursed a white woman and threatened a white man with a pistol. When the mob of about fifty men ordered him to come from his house, he replied with a shot. The torch was then applied to the house and as the occupants came out they were shot down.

ANOTHER CRISIS IN THE BALKANS

Prince Ferdinand Aspires to Be Czar of the Bulgars.

INDEPENDENCE OF BULGARIA

Ambitious Program Has Been Outlined,

All of Which Depends Upon Ferdinand's Ability to Maintain the Position He Has Assumed—The Probability That Turkey Will Not Acquiesce in This Arrangement Points to the Very Strong Probability of a Turko-Bulgarian War in the Near Future.

London, Oct. 5.—Events which threaten to change the political face of Europe are crystallizing with lightning rapidity. Almost over night the horizon of the near East, which seemed gradually to be assuming a peaceful appearance, has become crowded with war clouds. News has reached here from several sources that two definite strokes are impending which cannot fail to bring matters to a crisis, and perhaps force an immediate war. One is the proclamation by Prince Ferdinand of the independence of Bulgaria, which will include Rumelia, taking for himself the title of "Czar of the Bulgars." The other is an announcement by Austria-Hungary of the practical annexation of the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina as appanages of the Austro-Hungarian crown.

Either action will be equivalent to the tearing up of the treaty of Berlin, while Prince Ferdinand's course seems almost certain to precipitate a war between Bulgaria and Turkey. Before these possibilities, the quarrel over the East Rumelian section of the Orient railway sinks into insignificance. Both armies are reported to be quietly and swiftly mobilizing near the borders.
Bulgaria is said to be buying up munitions and horses on an extensive scale.
The Bulgarians have faith in their army, which has reached a high state of efficiency, although it is perhaps lacking in officers, and the war for which Bulgaria has long been suspected of preparing could be fought with more advantage for her now than when the Turkish government had time to reorganize its forces, which have become enervated by the corruption and neglect of the old regime.

The emperor of Austria, it is understood, has dispatched a letter to the president of France setting forth his intentions regarding Bosnia and Herzegovina, although the contents of the letter are kept secret, and he is sending similar notes to the other powers.
It seems incredible that Emperor Francis Joseph, who always has been a scrupulous observer of forms, should reveal his plans to the rulers of the other nations before he has communicated them to his own parliament. One explanation is that the letter was not intended for delivery until Tuesday,
when identical notes would be presented to the other powers.

While Austria's action with regard to the two provinces may not technically be called annexation, it is believed it will amount to that, whatever it may be called. Apparently the emperor is determined that the destiny of these provinces shall be Austrian, not Turkish. For thirty years they have been administered by Austria-Hungary, but they have always remained theoretically Turkish territory and Austria pledged that her administration should not derogate Turkish rights. English public opinion is with Türkel in the Bulgarian dispute, as all the powers except Austria seem to be,
and it remains to be seen what the English attitude will be toward annexation if that becomes a fact.

Austria is suspected of encouraging
the recent Bulgarian-Turkish trouble for her own interests, but the British government has made proposals to the two countries looking to the settlement of the railway case, and the other powers have agreed to give support to the plan which contemplates the temporary restoration of the railway to Turkey "to save her face," and the transference from the company to the Bulgarian government.

The English press expresses surprise that Austria and Bulgaria should plot against Turkey, and asks if the great powers will submit to having obstacles placed in the way of the regeneration of Turkey.

Turkey Ready for War.
Constantinople, Oct. 5.—Although a peaceful settlement of the Bulgarian question is desired, Turkey is pushing preparations to meet any development in the situation. Orders have been issued for the First division of the cavalry, consisting of six regiments, to be ready for immediate departure, with eight regiments of the Second corps and six of the Third. Turkey will thus have twenty regiments on frontier as opposed to eleven Bulgarian regiments, of which six are at Philippopolis, two at Sofia and three on the Roumanian frontier.

Turnova in the Limeright.
Paris, Oct. 5.—The French government is absorbed in the Balkan crisis.
Official advices which have been received here lead the Temps to an-

notice that at Turnova today Prince Ferdinand, the reigning prince of Bulgaria, will proclaim the independence of Bulgaria and will assume the title of "Czar of the Bulgars." "Rumelia will be included in the proclamation," says the Temps. "But probably Turkey will not acquiesce and a Turko-Bulgarian war is therefore likely. The only thing to interfere with this program is Prince Ferdinand's possible hesitation at the last minute, but this morning his resolution appeared to be definite."

Excitement in Sofia.

Sofia, Oct. 5.—The latest communication from the Bulgarian government to Turkey is a flat refusal to surrender the Oriental railway. The principality declines to deal with Turkey
in the matter, according to current reports. The greatest excitement per-

PRINCE FERDINAND.

vades the people and yesterday all the ministers left for Rustchuk on the Danube, where they will meet Prince Ferdinand, who is returning from abroad. A council will be held which is expected to bring the matter to a crisis. The attitude of the English press against Bulgaria causes surprise
here and general dissatisfaction.

What Vienna Says of It.

Vienna, Oct. 5.—The annexation of the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina by Austria, it is believed, will not be long delayed. The foreign office, however, refuses to admit that such a step is contemplated, and declares that the government is planning some changes regarding the international position of these provinces which, though forming an appanage of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, are nominally included in the Turkish empire. The opinion is held in political circles that these measures will be equivalent to annexation. Some of the foreign governments are reported to regard this step unfavorably, particularly Italy;
nevertheless this attitude seems to have no deterrent effect upon this government.

Servia Denounces Austria.

Belgrade, Servia, Oct. 5.—The reports received here that Austria proposes to annex the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina has caused the greatest excitement. The Servian press denounces Austria's action as warlike.

NO EXCITEMENT IN THE POLITICAL FIELD

The Week Bids Fair to Be Peaceful Politically.

New York, Oct. 5.—The politicians will continue to be quite busy this week. Taft continues in the middle West. Bryan is at Lincoln, resting and writing. He will leave his home tomorrow to confer with Chairman Mack in Chicago, where Bryan and Taft are to be guests of honor at the big lakes-to-gulf congress dinner on Wednesday night.

Meantime Senator Beveridge is busy in the far Northwest, speaking at Seattle, Portland, Tacoma, San Francisco and intermediate points. Hughes will be heard in South Dakota, Minnesota, Michigan and Missouri, closing the week at Chicago. Sherman remains in Indiana today, will then be in Ohio for several days, then returns to New York, while Kern is swinging through North and South Carolina and the Virginias. Hence, unless there should be an eruption at Lincoln or Washington, the week bids fair to be peaceful politically.

Tragedy in Pleasure Park.

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 5.—A tragedy
was enacted Sunday at Elysian Grove, a pleasure park near here, when an immense black bear escaped from a cage and charged upon a throng of visitors. The bear snatched the one-year-old infant of Mrs. Buss from a go-cart and crushed it to death before its mother's eyes. It was attacking the woman when a shot from a policeman's revolver stopped it. The bystanders opened a fusillade and killed
the bear with a score of bullets.

Return to Work Unconditionally.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 5.—The Canadian Pacific strike has been declared off. The terms are those brought in by the board of conciliation under the Lemieux act for settling labor disputes. The men return to work unconditionally.

The latest reports from Hyderabad,

We Guarantee Parisian Sage to Cure Dandruff Stop Falling Hair or Itching of the Scalp in Two Weeks. or Money Back—Giroux Mfg. Co., Sole American Makers of Parisian Sage.

The above is an offer we are most proud to make. It is an offer that no man or woman need be ashamed to accept. Parisian Sage is the quickest acting and most rejuvenating hair restorer in the world.

Its magical qualities have made it famous wherever it has been introduced.

It is the only hair restorer sold with an absolute guarantee to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching of the scalp.

It cures dandruff by killing the germs, and it kills them so promptly that the most skeptical give it their warmest praise.

But Parisian Sage is more than a cure for dandruff—it will make hair grow on and head where the hair bulb is not altogether dead.

And we want every reader of the Republican to know that Parisian Sage is the most delightful hair dressing in the world. It is so pleasant to use, and its effect is so invigorating and refreshing, that it pleases everybody.

And to the ladies we wish to emphasize the fact that Parisian Sage is the only tonic in the world guaranteed to make the hair grow luxuriant, soft and beautiful.

The girl with the Auburn hair is on the outside package of every bottle of Parisian Sage. F. B. Johnson & Co., sell it for 50 cents a large bottle, or you can get it direct, all express charges prepaid, from Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.
